

SECTION ONE A Letter Writing

You have just seen the following ad for a holiday in the USA. As you would like to get away from routine at home, you decide to give it a try. Write a letter of about 180 words applying for the job and including all the information you are asked for. As this is a holiday job, your letter should neither be too formal nor too informal. Ask for further information if you think you need to know anything else. You may use the spare paper to write an outline.

B Composition

Choose ONE of the following topics. Write about it in about 200 words. You may use the spare paper to write an outline.

- Your English teacher has invited you to participate in an info-exchange experience with people in different parts of the world. They will all tell about their culture and communicate in English. You have been asked to write a report on a typical wedding ceremony in Argentina.
- You have been discussing with your family about whether life in the future will be better than now. You decide it may be interesting to publish your ideas in the Buenos Aires Herald. You may refer to health and technological advances in your article but other topics are also possible.
- The English Institute you attend has just launched a writing contest you decide to enter. You have to write a story ending: "Now, I think it's time we called the police." If you win, you will get a one-year scholarship at the institute!
